

NEW YORK, SUNDAY, JANUARY 1, 1922.

The famous Household Cavalry arriving at Westminster for the opening of Parliament, not on horseback but in motor buses.

(c) Farrington Photo Co.-Keystone.

American troops who formed part of the Army of Occupation are shown here en-training at Coblenz for home.

Underwood & Underwood.

Above—It is still summer in Florida. This photograph was made at Miami Beach in the bathing hour.

Paul Thompson.

Above—The state coach, in which were the King, Queen and Princess Mary, on the way to the opening of the Parliament which ratified the Irish treaty.

(c) Farrington Photo Co.

At left—Col. Harvey, the American Ambassador, arriving for the opening of Parliament. In front of Col. Harvey is the Dowager Marchioness of Queensberry. Behind him is Mrs. Asquith.

(c) Farrington Photo Co.

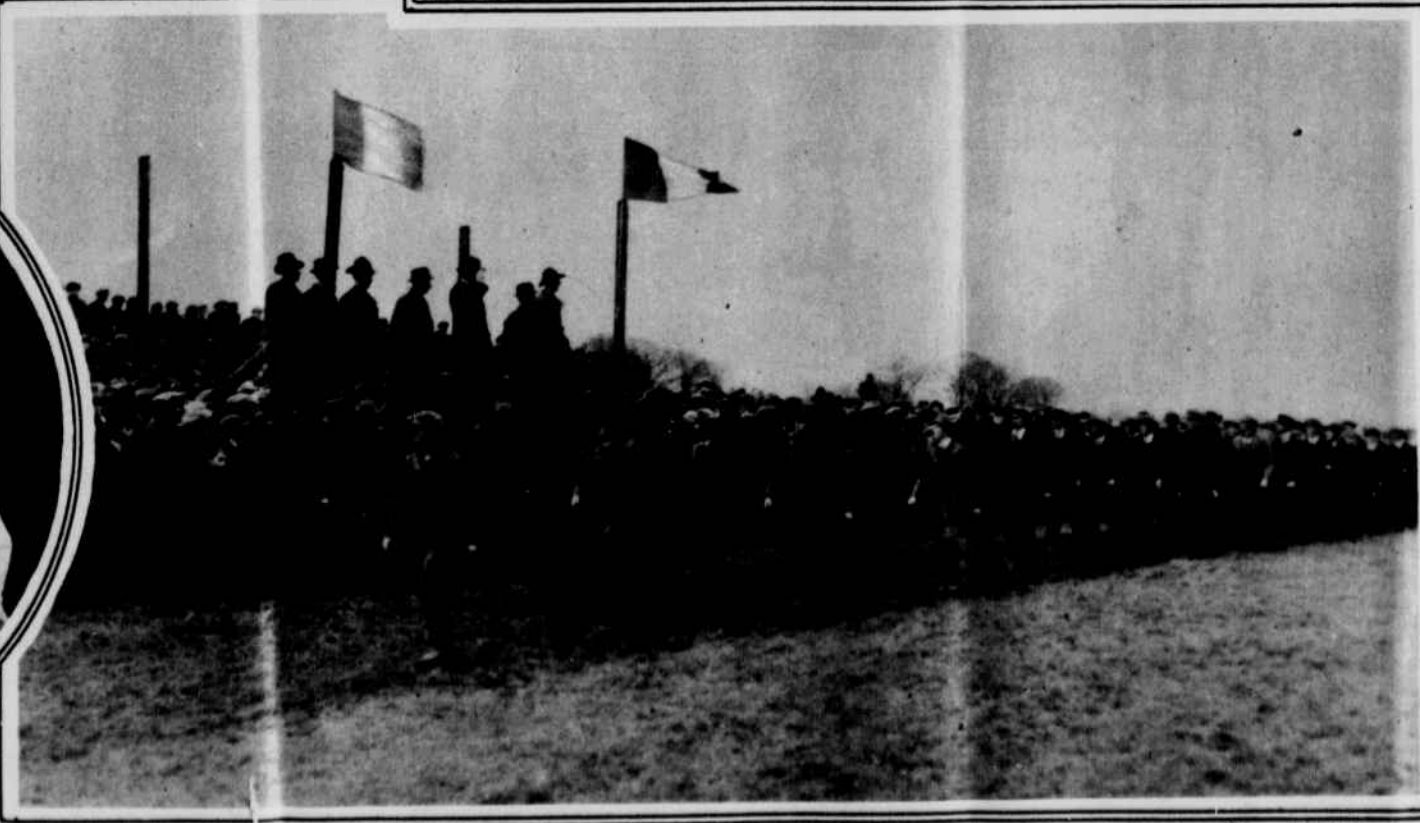

At left—This family group shows the Earl of Harewood, Viscount Lascelles, Princess Mary and Queen Mary. The Viscount is to marry the Princess, who will then become the Earl's daughter-in-law.

(c) Farrington Photo Co.-Keystone.

Margaret and Henry Keep, Jr., children of Col. Henry and Mrs. Esther Keep.

(c) Underwood & Underwood.

The march past of men of the western division of the Irish National Army before Eamon de Valera at Six-mile Bridge, County Clare.

Kadel & Herbert

Reggie Ward, son of Sir John and Lady Ward of Dudley House, Park Lane, London. Lady Ward is the daughter of former Ambassador Whitelaw Reid.

(c) Speight, Ltd.